In the Industry

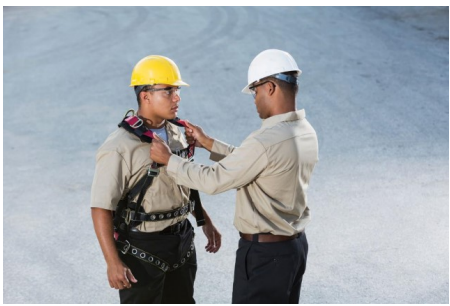

Philips Lighting is Now Signify

Signify, the world leader in lighting, has today launches its new company name, following the amendment of the company's articles of association changing its name from Philips Lighting to Signify. Signify will continue to use the Philips brand for its products under the existing licensing agreement with Royal Philips. Founded as Philips in Eindhoven, the Netherlands, we've led the lighting industry with innovations that serve professional and consumer markets for more than 127 years. In 2016, we spun off from Philips, becoming a separate company, listed on Amsterdam's Euronext Stock Exchange.

Ecommerce Message

When safety is second nature for electrical contractors, they are stronger and better construction team members. However, making safety a core company value takes more than good management; it takes leaders. If your crew members feel you have their backs, they will reciprocate with a commitment to safety. In day-to-day work, the job-site foreman or first-line supervisor often is the face of a company's safety values.
